DIY deck
You can do-it-yourself building a timber or wooden deck is really not that hard if you keep it simple. Even if you know nothing about construction this article is for you. This guide will enable you to construct a deck that functions well, is cost effective and durable. There are 6 critical steps you will need to follow to design and build your own timber deck.

Step 1: Research
There is nothing like research. Have a good look around our website. There are many articles that will help you understand the process of construction. See list of construction articles as a starting point.

Research allows you to discover helpful alternatives in materials and methods which can prevent issues further down the track. We have listed a couple of alternatives for you below.

Timber decking alternative

For many homes in bushfire prone areas timber decking is not an option, due to its combustibility. If your home is in a bushfire prone area or you want a maintenance free timber deck you may like to try a timber composite product. These products are usually comprised of PVC, timber dust and glue. An example of this is Hunter Building Products 'Timberlast' decking. It is made of recycled HDPE and wood fibre. The Timberlast product is made to last and will not rot, splinter or require painting or oiling. It is slip resistant, fade free, easy to install, and the product looks like regular timber decking.

Plant description (not used)

Acacia cardiophylla (Wyalong wattle)

Plant description
The feathery foliage coupled with bright yellow spring flowers and a relatively compact habit make this a wattle well worth planting in your garden. This popular shrub grows upright, and can vary from low growing to over 10m tall. The leaves are greyish green, finely divided heart-shaped foliage. The flowers are golden yellow and have a delicate fragrance of nectar, and densely clustered on branches. This shrub makes a wonderful feature plant or screen in the garden and will provide a stunning display of colour throughout late spring and summer.

So what are readers & advertisers saying about us?

ADVERTISERS

"We have been connected with savvy online consumers in the market to renovate their bathroom. This direct link is an essential component of our advertising strategy and fundamental in building our web market".

Bathroom Warehouse

"Business had been so slow I got use to leaving my phone in the car. I had not undertaken any internet advertising before but since advertising with the Australian Home Design Directory I now need to carry my phone at all times as I receive at least 3 calls every day enquiring about my services. Had I known it would work so well I would have signed up sooner. I also get regular emails from customers wanting quotes". Grind and Shine

"I've been with Home Design Directory from the very beginning. I really loved the concept, and Angela was just so enthusiastic. We were definitely on the same wavelength and I could really appreciate what she was trying to do. We're very happy to continue our relationship with them as we think what they're doing is great. The main benefit my business gets from About Your Home apart from the fact that we have a great presence on the site which covers all our bases, is that someone else is doing all the work and getting the stuff out there so I'm not having to work so hard to keep up an internet presence. We do very little advertising but this is one our core initiatives." Vicky Poulter, Interior designer

"Within the first three months of advertising we signed 3 contracts totaling $660,000. Advertising is definitely benefiting my business. Over the last two years I have signed up over $2M worth of work directly from my advertising".

L.S. Building

READERS

"This is a fantastic site. I love it, I only wish I had seen this before we did our renovations. However we did follow a few of the simple rules (such as no or small windows on the west, and most windows face north/northwest). I will definitely bookmark this page for future reference, as we still have a bit more renovations to do".

"Having just finished building my first house, I am amazed at how spot on you are about everything. I will pass this list onto everyone who is crazy enough to build their own home".

In a nutshell

- We are passionate about providing high-quality information that anyone can read
- We have sections dedicated to Kitchens & bathrooms, Home construction, Home design, DIY & Landscaping & gardening.
- Easy navigation and great value in educating readers on renovating and building a new home.
- Started by people with solid backgrounds in home design, construction, engineering and Search Engine Optimisation.
- We provide regular advice on local east coast radio stations, about renovating & construction.
